THE HONORABLE TANA LIN 1 2 3 4 5 6 UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT 7 WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON AT SEATTLE 8 9 CORNER COMPUTING SOLUTIONS SP, et No. 2:23-cy-00939 TL al., JOINT STATUS REPORT 10 Plaintiff, 11 v. 12 GOOGLE LLC, 13 Defendant. 14 15 Pursuant to Federal Rule of Civil Procedure 26(f), Local Civil Rule 26(f), and the Court's 16 Order dated June 28, 2023, Dkt. 9, the parties submit the following Joint Status Report and 17 Discovery Plan. 18 1. Nature and complexity of the case. 19 (A) Plaintiff's Statement: Google LLC via not dealing in a fair and timely 20 manner and in good faith (by ignoring facts I gave them in the statements 21 for review removal) with the initial review removal request and the 22 escalation of that request; has breached the covenant of good faith and fair 23 dealing. Google LLC ignored communications via the escalation and the 24 initial review removal request for more than 3 months. They ignored their 25 own agreements for content removal, which the 1 star reviews meet via their 26

JOINT STATUS REPORT – 1 (No. 2:23-cv-00939 TL)

"Fake Engagement" policy and other content removal sections and subsections of that policy. Third, Google LLC acted with undue prejudice and unfairly specifically on the CORNER SOLID SOLUTIONS account which had "Fake Engagement" reviews removed, but not on the CORNER COMPUTING SOLUTIONS account. Even though those reviews were left by the same accounts with similar content. Again meeting the "Fake Engagement" standard and other standards.

The summary claims are that one, GOOGLE LLC did not act in a fair and timely manner and in good faith of the escalation and statements given by CORNER COMPUTING SOLUTIONS about the 1 star reviews.

Two GOOGLE LLC ignored communications and requests and escalation for an unfair amount of time.

Three, GOOGLE LLC acted unfairly with the CORNER COMPUTING SOLUTIONS account by not removing "Fake Engagement" reviews that were removed from the CORNER SOLID SOLUTIONS account.

Four, GOOGLE LLC did not keep good faith by breaching their own policy on content removal of GOOGLE REVIEW and AD WORDS otherwise GOOGLE ADS accounts. They ignored my statements of how these were not customers of mine and that I never had any real customer engagement with the accounts that left the one star reviews within a short time frame. Instead of communicating with me about the matter in a constructive way.

(B) Defendant's Statement: This case was brought by a pro se plaintiff against Defendant Google LLC ("Google"), largely based on Google's alleged failure to remove unfavorable online reviews posted by third parties from

1				Plaintiff's Google Business Profile. Although Plaintiff's allegations in the
2				Complaint are unclear, Plaintiff appears to allege that Google breached an
3				unspecified contract by failing to remove such reviews, and also somehow
4				breached the duty of good faith and fair dealing. It is Google's position that
5				Plaintiff's Complaint should be dismissed for failure to state a claim and
6				because Plaintiff's claims are barred by Section 230 of the Communications
7				Decency Act. See Dkt. 10.
8		2.	Conse	ent to United States Magistrate Judge. No.
9		3.	Propo	sed deadline for joining additional parties. The parties propose October 9,
10	2023.
11		4.	Propo	sed deadline for the filing of the Motion for Class Certification. N/A.
12		5.	Disco	very Plan.
13			(A)	Initial Disclosures . Initial disclosures were exchanged on August 9, 2023.
14				See Dkt. 9.
15			(B)	Subjects, Timing, and Potential Phasing of Discovery. In the event this case
16				survives Google's motion to dismiss, the parties anticipate normal
17				discovery, including written discovery and depositions related to liability,
18				damages, and Google's affirmative defenses. The parties anticipate that the
19				scope of discovery will be narrow, and that discovery can likely be
20				completed in six months. The parties do not see a need for phasing
21				discovery at this time.
22			(C)	Issues About Discovery or Electronically Stored Information ("ESI"). The
23				parties agree to preserve relevant ESI that is also proportional to the needs
24				of the case. The parties do not anticipate complications with respect to the
25				discovery of ESI. The parties do not currently see a need for entry of an ESI
26				protocol.
